

Building Innovation Culture and Leaders Within An Organization

Student Name

Department of Information Technology, DeVry University

MIS 540: Innovation Through Technology

Professor James Karagiannes

Due Date

Introduction

Encouraging a culture of innovation is absolutely vital for corporate resilience, competitiveness, and long-run success in the fast-changing business scene of today. Original ideas' strategic application to provide value defines innovation. This paper looks at the fundamental components needed to foster an innovation culture, techniques to draw in and inspire innovators, criteria for choosing realistic ideas, and ways to handle the inherent risks of innovation.